THE LEONARD CASE.

Card From Jocelyn in Defense of Curry Swann and Glimore Interviewed---They Re iterate Their Statements. Further Developments in the Affair.

At an early hour yesterday we were alled upon by Col. A. P. Curry, who, af-er asking the authorship of the article in ogard to the escape of Leonard, and re-erving a reply, delivered to us the fol-owing communication, which he stated written by Jocelyn, and giv-to him (Col. Curry) without solicitation on his part: MENTHIS, TENN., June 1, 1870.

Editors Appeal: There seems to be a misunderstanding somewhere with reference to a statement said to have been made by myself concerning the escape, from the county all, of Thomas E. Leonard, which manifests itself in an article in this morning's APPEAL, and which I insure to correct as for as reparch myself. sire to correct as far as regards myself, y statement was this; I had been out my cell for exercise one day after the mpe of Leonard, and when the time same for locking up the cells for the sight, Mr. Francis passed my cell, forget-ing that I had been out, and consequent-y forgetting to lock my cell. He had cone out through the gate communicat-ing with the prisoner's department from he offices, when I called him back and orised him of his neglect. My cell was same from which Leonard had esped, though I was not in jail at the time speci, though I was not in jair at the time of said escape, having been arrested the ay after. I will further say that I never nade a statement before the Court, relative to the above facts, but simply asserted it to one or two persons whom I now orget. I have authority from the prisores Swann and Gilmore to say that the ar-cle in the Appeal is equally untrue with gard to themselves, as they never made

Very respectfully, C. A. JOCELYN, According to our habit, we immediate ly agreed to publish the same, and to make further inquiries into the truth or faisity of the statements published by us yesterday morning.

Taking Mr. Jocelyn's communication, and a copy of the APPEAL with us, we went up to the jail, and by permission interviewed Swann and Gilmore, the men whom Mr. Jocelyn states pronounced our account "untrue with regard to themselves." The prisoner, Swann, was first sent for, and the following conversation Reporter—Have you seen anybody this morning in regard to an article which ap-peared in the APPEAL of to-day?

Ans.—No, sir. Question—Have you seen Mr. Jocelyn speak with him this morning?

Ans.—No, sir, Q.—Will you be kind enough to give me all the information that you may have in regard to the escape of Leonard from jail? Swann besitated somewhat to answer. ot after being assured that no harm could occur to him from any source if made a clean breast of what he knew, e answered that he would. He then receeded to state that he was hired at is jail in the capacity of a cook when eonard made his escape.

Reporter—You were not a prisoner, ben, as stated in the APPEAL? A.—No sir. I had been a prisoner, out had been tried and acquitted, and flerward was hired here as cook by Ma-Jor Morton. On the evening of the night that Leonard made his escape, Mr. Francis, the jailer, went away about seven o'clock, and remained away until ten o'clock, and remained away until ten o'clock. The watchman was away when Francis lett, and did not come in for over half an hour. When Francis came in he went through the spring gate (the gate lividing the corridor and the body of the lividing the corridor and the body of the watchman will, and after being in there a few min- while the Appeal, was impatient that the attracture might rise more rapidly and ntes, he came out and told the watchman, Berry, to go in and lock Leonard's cell door. He didn't say anything about Goodlett, the other man who escaped with Leonard. I then went off to my room, and went to sleep. I was waked up about three o'clock by Berry, who told ma that by Herry, who told me that Leonard and Goodlett had escaped. He didn't tell Mr. Francis about it until after taylight the next morning. orter-Did you ever see Curry and eonard together?

A.—Yes, sir; two or three days before he made his escape Leonard and Curry were standing at the spring gate talking. I heard Leonard say, "If I don't get out efore the election I won't get out at all." eonard at the same time expressed the pinion that Curry would not be re-electl. To the first remark of Leonard, Curry nawered that "he would fix that," Reporter—Did Leonard have any money in his possession?

A.—Yes, sir. A few days before the escape, an express package containing two hundred dollars came to the jail for Leonard, and was deflivered to him.

Reporter—Then it is customary to ed to escape?

Ans.—Yes, sir. After I heard what went on between him and Curry I did think so, but it was none of my business think so, but it was none of my and I said nothing about it. Again asking him if he had authorized

Q, by reporter-Did you see Jocelyn this morning?
Ans.—Yes. He went to the cell that he tatements made in the APPEAL? Ans.—Well, I am a prisoner here, and I on't want to mix up in anything of the sort. It may set me back. These men have got power over me, and I don't want to be kept in their clutches. Here he was interrupted by the Sheriff, General M. J. Wright, who, we neglected to say, was present and heard the entire interview, who assured the prisoner that nothing which he should state should be used against him in any manner; that there had been a new deal all around, and that neither Curry nor anybody eise had any power to harm him. General Wright at the same time told the prisoner that he could answer or not, just as he pleased; that it was perfectly optional with him. Glimore, thus reassured by the General's words and manner, said that he would tell what he knew, and we re-Reporter (showing Joselyn's "card")-Depot at foot of Main street. Ticket Office.

He may have closed it when he went out. Q.—Is is true that the jail officers went round next morning and threatened the prisoners if they reported anything about Leonard's escape?

A.—I don't know about that. They brought me into the office of the jail and questioned me about it, and I told them that what I did know I would not tell there. I didn't consider that they had any right to question me, and I wouldn't give them any satisfaction.

This closed the interview to all intents and purposes—at least so far as to show that Mr. C. A. Jocelyn had no authorit to use Swann's name in his denial, and only a partial authority to use Gilmore's. At our request the cell mate of Mr. Jocelya (whose name we do not give for reasons of our own) was sent for, and he stated to us that he had written Mr. Jocelyn's communication at his (Jocelyn's) request. We asked him if Jocelyn had told him that he had seen Colonel Curry. He said that he had not, and that his card was unsolicited by that gentleman. He remarked, however, that he had seen Colonel Curry on Monday after his release, and mentioned to him that Joe (Swann) had got a new trial. Colonel Curry remarked that he ought to be sent up for twenty years. up for twenty years.

Such is the three-fold operation of Hostetter's Btomach Bitters, and hence the great superiority of that standard vegetable restorative over all medicines that are more ly tonics and nothing else. The effect of the ordinary astringent tinctures and extracts upon the bowels is disastrous, and upon the deprayed blood or bile they produce no heneficial effects whatever. In dyspepsin and it are complaint all the fluids and humors of the body are more or less infected, and the bowels are often badly constipated. An unmedified astringent—quinine for instance—does infinitely more harm than good in such cases. In Hostetter's Bitters, on the other hand, the stimulating and tonic elements are qualified with aperients and antiseptic ingredients. The finest taxatives and blood depurents in the vegetable kingdom are intermixed with those of a purely invigorating nature, and under the operation of this admirable combination, the three important processes of invigoration, regulation and purification go on together.
